DAYS OF REGISTRATION:

June 6, 7, 13 and 14 at all Voting Places.

In his speeches at Church Hill and in the court house last week Mr. Givens attempted to answer the charges of inconsistency brought against him by the KENTUCKIAN. He admitted supporting Laffoon, who introduced two public building measures in one session, while he is now opposing Ellis, who has introduced but one. His explanation was that none of Laffoon's three opponents in 1886 made the question an issue and, as they all occupied the same position, he voted for Laffoon for personal reasons, without endorsing his record. This explanation may be satisfactory in Mr. Givens' mind, but it is strange, very strange, how he can reconcile his duty as a conscientious citizen with the support of a candidate whose course in "robbing" the people had characterized past occasions, but everything was done decently and in order, most of the tables being spread on the ground in picnic fashion.

The usual committee had charge of the various branches of the sale. An abundance of ice-water was supplied for all, the carriages and vehicles were all kept in place and the stock pens were presided over by competent committee-men. The sale was finished before dinner, owing to the spirited bidding.

Dr. B. S. Wood, Boales & Girard, W. J. Withers and other local dealers were the principal buyers.

After dinner Mr. Clarence C. Givens made a political speech in the school house and the candidates took possession of the outside crowd and vied with each other in their attentions to the voters. It was a great day all round.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years it was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to care with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Schiebe has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheaney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and nervous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address, F. J. CHEANEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Capt. Ellis' recent tariff speech elicited the following compliment from the New York Sun: "The next speaker was a gentleman from Kentucky. He had a smooth face and a boyish appearance. It was Hon. W. T. Ellis. It was his maiden speech. The language was chaste, the argument compact and the ideas clearly expressed. It was a speech that stimulated thought and commanded attention. Kentucky may well be proud of the orator."

In view of the well-known fact that so many of the so-called fine whiskies are but a vile compound of Essential Oils and common rectified spirits, producing mixtures totally unfit for consumption, we deem it proper to call the attention of consumers to the merits of I. W. Harper's Nelson County, Ky., Whiskey, which, absolutely pure, is made from fine selected grain and fully matured by age. Sole agents, Edmundson & Long, Hopkinsville, Ky.*

Returns from 95 counties in the Clerkship race give Madden 179, Longmoo 164, Adams 146, Martin 104 and the other candidates have about 140 votes between them. The race is pretty apt to narrow down to Madden and either Longmoo or Adams. The convention meets noon to-morrow.

The act prohibiting the advertising of lotteries in Kentucky is very sweeping and very severe in its penalties and no newspaper can afford to violate it. The lottery "ads." will have to go.

The Supreme Court of the United States has again decided that Kentucky must die as prescribed by the New York law and his election will take place after all dilatory methods have been exhausted.

The money has been raised to establish a $1,000,000 Baptist University at Chicago. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil man, gave $600,000 of the necessary sum.

THE GRANGE SALE.

Fancy Prices Realized for Fat Cattle--A Pleasant and Successful Day.

The annual stock sale of Church Hill Grange on last Friday was in many respects the most successful ever held. The stock brought high prices and the farmers were all pleased with the outcome. Following is a statement of the Most of the large sellers bought up cattle last winter at very cheap rates and the high prices enabled them to realize handsome profits. Quite a number of them made two hundred per cent. on their investments.

The weather was clear and favorable, though a trifle too warm, and nothing occurred to mar the success of the day's business.

The crowd, owing to the absence of a free dinner, was not as large as usual, but the attendance was large enough and everything was more satisfactory. No one present failed to get enough to eat, as the generous and hospitable grangers invited everybody, strangers and all, and after the large crowd had been fed, and well fed at that, many basketfuls of frag ments were gathered up. There were none of the disagreeable scenes around the table that had characterized past occasions, but everything was done decently and in order, most of the tables being spread on the ground in picnic fashion.

The usual committee had charge of the various branches of the sale. An abundance of ice-water was supplied for all, the carriages and vehicles were all kept in place and the stock pens were presided over by competent committee-men. The hill making it unlawful to advertise lotteries has gone to the Governor for his signature.

The nominations of the new officers of the Western Lunatic Asylum were confirmed some days ago.

The Legislature has at last passed the bill appropriating $15,000 to continue the Geological Survey.

The redistricting bill went through last week and will become a law. No change is made in the Second.

The penitentiary trouble was adjusted Thursday by the withdrawal of the Governor's resignation as a striking fund commissioner, at the request of the Legislature.

Representatives Farmer and Bentley, two Republicans, had a set-to in the rotunda of the State House Friday and the same day two lobbyists had a scrapping match in the Capitol yard.

Among the items of the appropriation bill for the session are: For ministers of the gospel, for opening the meeting with prayers, $400; Guy Daily Capital, $100; enrolling clerks, $10 per day; assistants, $8; sergeants-at-arms, $8; House and Senate clerks and assistants, $10; doorkeepers, $4; assistants, $2; pages, $3; juniors, $6; assistants, $5; Speaker pro tem., $5; regular Speakers, $1 and mileage.

E. M. Thomas Mt. Co. New York: I have often thought I would write and thank you for the wonderful Vitalia Capsules. I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia and indigestion for twenty-three years. No one knows how much I have suffered. I could eat but little of the most delicate food; nothing seemed to assimilate. About three months ago I read little book. I at once bought one box of your soft Capsules, and after taking the first dose I felt like another person. I was so relieved. The Vitalia Capsules, with the Vitalia Liver Pills, are the best remedies for dyspepsia and liver trouble I ever used. I feel safe in saying that if I continue to take the medicine and act steadily they will effect a permanent cure.

CREAM OF NEWS.

The Brane Trial Postponed.

The Brane case was called in the Criminal Court at Nashville yesterday and continued at the instance of the attorney for the defense, until the 16th of June.

Overlaid Himself.

Friday afternoon Dr. Wm. M. Faqua, who had been quite nervous for several days, took a dose of belladonna to quiet his nerves. He soon realized that he had taken too much. Dr. Southall, whose office is in the same building, was called in at once and proceeded to relieve his brother physician. Dr. Faqua was in a bad condition and Dr. Stites and a number of others of the profession visited him and the proper remedies being used, he was by mid-night out of danger, and now, though very weak, doing well.

Set Fire to the Caboose.

Wm. Johnson, ed., was arrested last Sunday afternoon for drunkenness and pased in the caboose to await his trial as soon as Judge Brasher opened his court yesterday morning. Johnson didn't like confinement, and concluded to free himself if possible. Finding that the bars of his prison were fastened into pieces of wood which were let into the wall, he set fire to one of them Sunday night hoping soon to be able to burn his way out. His scheme would have worked all right had not Jordan Barker "caught on" to it. There were five or six others confined with him and of course all would have had a chance to make their escape had not Johnson's designs been frustrated. When Barker went into the room he found the still burning brightly, but he at once put it out with a bucket of water. But for the timely entrance of Barker into the caboose the city court room and surrounding buildings might have been burned.

Johnson's trial has been set for tomorrow. He is now in jail, where he will have no chance of burning his way out.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Mrs. Wright Gets the Postoffice in this City.

The Appointment a Great Surprise.

President Harrison sent the name of Mrs. May H. Wright to the Senate on the 22nd inst., nominating her for postmaster at Hopkinsville, Ky. The first intimation received was a brief notice in the afternoon papers, which was bulletinized at the KENTUCKY office Friday morning and took the city completely by surprise.

When the postoffice fight opened a year ago there were four applicants, viz: Maj. Jno. W. Breathitt, S. H. Harrison, Mrs. S. H. Burbridge and Mrs. May Hays Wright.

Maj. Breathitt was endorsed by the politeness and his nomination was soon regarded as an assured fact, although the President refused to remove the present postmaster until his time expired. Mrs. May Wright, however, went in person to Washington, and called upon Harrison and Waunaaker and urged her claims to the office. She also secured a lengthy petition and filed letters of endorsement from her pastor, Rev. W. L. Nourse, and other prominent Presbyterians. She has all along expressed great confidence, but few people about town believed she had any chance to get the office and it is not known just what strings were pulled to secure the plumb.

Maj. Breathitt was of course taken greatly by surprise and will make an effort to re-open the case and get another chance at the office. He left Saturday for Owensboro and it is understood Messrs. Jolly and Feland will go to Washington in his behalf and try to have the nomination withdrawn. Mrs. Wright is the wife of Mr. T. Wright, who is an invalid and incapacitated from making a support. She is a native of Ohio and has for several years been engaged with her sister, Miss Alice Hayes, in the millinery business here. She married Mr. Wright five or six years ago. She is young, handsome and a devout member of the Presbyterian church and her business ability and general fitness no doubt qualify her to make a good and efficient postmaster. She is a Republican, though her political opinions have never been publicly expressed and the Republicans are greatly disfavored because an active politician was not appointed. Mrs. Wright attributes her success not so much to her political backing as to the church influence brought to bear in her interest. She was treated almost to an ovation Friday and scores of people called to offer their congratulations. Mrs. Wright has but little doubt that she will be promptly confirmed by the Senate, as all of the objections now urged against her were embodied in papers on file with the President and were not sufficient to prevent her appointment.

The term of Postmaster McKenzie expires July 19, but he thinks the change will be made about June 30, at the end of the current quarter. Mrs. Wright declined to talk about her probable assistants in the office.

Rev. Chas. H. Nash will preach his final sermon next Sunday morning (May 25) at 11 o'clock. He has been sick and confined to his home almost ever since his return from Texas. He and his family will leave for Hopkinsville next Thursday. Bardstown Recruit.

Marshal Geo. Hunter, a so-called detective from Bardstown, published in the Courier an alleged explanation of the coal-throwing ghosts at Rev. Mr. Quatier's last winter. He thinks the coal was thrown from the outside by enemies who raised the windows for that purpose. In fact he does not even make a correct statement of the affair. The public has long since made up its mind about the matter and it is no longer talked about here.

T. W. Wootten was arrested at the Orange Salo Friday on charge of selling beer, but the warrant did not have the name of any witness upon it and Esq. McGaughay declined to take the bond offered and released Mr. Wootten without bond. There was no evidence against him and Mr. Wootten says he will prosecute the party who had him arrested, if he finds him out. Geo. Diuguid, col., was also arrested and put under a bond of $50 for having a keg of beer in his possession. He claims that he was left in charge of the keg by a party of gentlemen who carried it out for their own use. His trial is set for next Friday, before Judge Winfree.

THE MULE KICKED.

Theo is Why Headless Chickens Were Picked Up in Virginia.

There has been considerable gold found recently several miles north of the District Line, and several shafts have been sunk on the properties, all of which, to use the language of the boor, "exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the promoters." Several farmers out near the seat of disturbance have been earning considerable money hauling out from the shaft to Senator Sawyer's stamp mill a few miles away. The shafts are sunk and the ore extracted by the usual methods of drilling and blasting. For the latter purpose nitro-glycerine is used. One of the teamsters put several empty nitro-glycerine cans in his cart and took them to his home, near Takoma Park, intending to clean them out and make pains of them. He set them down in the larder while he was putting up the mutton. Half-grown hog saw the cans, walked over and nuzzled them around. About a gill of the stuff had collected in the bottom of each, and the pig licked it down. It has a sweet flavor and is medicinal. Then the farmer came out, picked up the cans and took them back into the house. The pig chewed up a stray ear of corn, a dead rat, some corn-husks and two or three other delicacies and ambled into the barn. Perhaps nothing would have happened if the raze-hound had been gifted with ordinary intelligence, but what would possess him under the circumstances to go and scratch his back against the post of the off-spring's staff? And it was licked up by the Duchess, mother to the Duke. The last was immediately and eloquently barking with love of the smitten Parisian, and filled with all those pretty words that came in with the grand monologue. The latter implied an elopement, and pictured the ideal life of love on the pastoral lands of the now America.

The Duke and the Duchess were surrounded with rage at the discovery. So high did feeling run in the court that the ducal Chamberlain challenged the Frenchman to a duel, and the lover fell mortally wounded. As he fell the Frenchman tore open his tunic, and there, pressed against his heart, was a handkerchief belonging to the Princess. Toward it his hand feebly moved, but finding that the monarch had been seized, and then struck out like Kelly at the hat. The pig digested a beautiful parabola, screwing all the time like a three-hundred-pound shell from one of Adonis' Portor's mortars, saluted out through the dark doors on a flat trajectory and struck on top of the hen-house.

Then came a clasp of thunder sound; the pig, oh, where was he? Ask of the winds which whistled around the heavens and the sea. The nitro-glycerine had exploded, slaying pig, hen-house and poultry into the middle of Hailback. There heap'd a piece of that pig been found big enough to hold an inquest on, nor a placid of hen-house big enough for a hen to pick her tooth on, and a colored man was arrested the other day for having in a box some dead chickens, while he confessed he picked up over in Virginia.—Washington Post.

HUMAN MECHANISM.

Movements of Nerves and Muscles in Playing a Piece of Music.

Science, says Sir James Paget, will supply the natural man with wonders uncounted. The author had once heard Millie Janotta play a presto by Mendelssohn. She played 5,500 notes in four minutes and three seconds. Every one of these notes involved certain movements of a finger, at least two, and most three, involved in addition movements of the hand, in the upward and downward. They also involved repeated movements of the wrists, elbows and arms, says a writer in the Popular Science Monthly, altogether probably not less than one movement for each hand.

Therefore there were three distinct movements for each note. As there were twenty-four notes per second, and each of these notes involved three distinct musical movements, that amounted to seventy-two movements in each second. Moreover, each of these notes was determined by the will to a chosen position with a certain force at a certain time, and with a certain duration. Therefore, there were four distinct qualities in each of the seventy-two movements in each second. Such were the transpositions outward. And all those were conditional on consciousness of the position of each hand and finger before it was moved, and by moving it the sound and the force of each touch. Therefore, there were three conscious sensations to every note.

There were seventy-two transpositions a second, 144 to and fro and those with constant change of quality. And then, added to that, all the memory was re-membering each note in its due time and place and was exercised in the comparison of it with others that came before. So that it is hard to say to say that there was not less than 300,000 millions of nerve force to and from the brain outward and inward every second, and during the whole of that time judgment was being exercised as to whether the music was being played better or worse than before, and the mind was conscious of some of the motions which the music was intended to inspire.—Science Notes.

GOLD IN A CAVE.

When and Where the First Discovery of It Was Made.

The first discovery of gold in a cave was made two years ago by George Bon-ton in the Rock of Ages which he was developing. He struck a cave in the quartzite, and crumbled in the bottom of the cave was a rich collection of gold master. D. C. Hartwell, an ore buyer of Oury, purchased the stuff which was shoveled from the bottom of the cave and paid $8,500 for it. Considerable interest was awakened by the discovery, though one or two claims had been held for three or four years by parties who thought there was gold in the veins, but were not nearly enough convinced to develop the same. The miners, however, began to go over and look at the Rock of Ages, and some of them at once said they knew where there was other caves on the east side of the gulch, which led to the discovery of a number of rich and extensive deposits. It is a singular condition of affairs and one new to every body in the district. Every mining man it is said to be a rare feature in ore deposits and something entirely new in Colorado. The ground on the north side of the Uncompahgre has been run over for years by prospectors who were looking after fissure veins. Finding little encouragement to develop the same, the miners found there, that portion of the district was virtually abandoned. A few locations, however, were maintained by annual assessments, but without any knowledge of the ore values concealed in the caves, though known to exist.—Denver Times.

During the first ten months of last year 12,000 pounds of the ore were shipped to New York, and the value of $27,000, were exported from that port, compared with 11,900, of the value of $27,000, during the same period of 1888.
